

ADMISSION DECISION

Admission into a UNCG graduate degree or certificate program is a process shared by the Graduate School and the graduate program. To be considered for graduate admission, applicants must meet the requirements of the Graduate School and of the graduate program.

Faculty in the graduate programs recommend students for admission to the Graduate School after they have assessed each prospective graduate student's potential. Programs have significant discretion in determining admission standards and class size based on factors such as availability of academic mentors, financial support, laboratory space, and student distribution within interest areas.

Neither an academic record exceeding minimum requirements, nor satisfactory scores on standardized tests, nor professional expertise alone will assure an applicant's admission in this competitive environment. Rather, the overall record must indicate the strong likelihood that a prospective student will complete graduate study successfully.

Each application to the Graduate School will result in one admission decision. Offers of admission are not official until approved by the Dean of the Graduate School. Official admission decisions are communicated to applicants by email from the Dean of the Graduate School. These decisions are final and not subject to appeal. Prospective students can view the status of the admission application online at the application portal. Click "Manage Your Account" and then "View All Forms." If the admitted applicant does not give their intent to enroll by the specified deadline and register for the term specified in the admission letter, the offer of admission will be canceled. Applicants will need to submit a new application, which is subject to all application deadlines and application fees.
